According to a study conducted by the *University of Michigan...
Workers are overwhelmingly positive about having OTC medications in the workplace.

*University of Michigan Study Findings:

- The workers surveyed reported visiting their company health/medical department on average 10 times per year.
- The top four worker complaints that occurred while on the job were headaches, colds/sinus problems, muscle ache/pain, and burns.
- 73 percent of those surveyed regularly experienced headaches and cold and sinus symptoms while at work.
- More than half (55 percent) of those surveyed experienced muscle and joint pain at work.
- Almost half (46 percent) of employees experienced cuts and burns on their skin while on the job.
- 89 percent of those surveyed believed the over-the-counter medications provided by the company helped them feel well enough to complete their shifts.
- Employees strongly agreed with the statement: "I highly recommend having over-the-counter medications available to workers in other work sites that currently do not have over-the-counter medications in place."

What Does ANSI Z308.1-2021 Say About OTC Medications?

*In addition to the established minimum kit contents requirements, ANSI Z308.1-2021 Appendix C also has Guidance on Selection of Contents for First Aid Kits. Highlights of Appendix C include:

Selecting Additional Products for the Work Environment: Providing additional products above and beyond the required contents appropriate to the workplace may increase overall workplace safety and employee productivity. These types of products can include oral over-the-counter (OTC) medications that treat pain/inflammation, headaches, upset stomach, and cold or sinus symptoms.

Guidelines for OTC medications in workplace first aid kits include: Individually packaged in the proper dose, tamper-evident packets with drug facts printed on them. OTCs that may cause drowsiness are not recommended.

Seasonal First Aid Supplies: The workplace hazard assessment may also reveal the need for certain supplies during the different seasons based on exposure to different elements. Products may be necessary for treatment of allergic reactions, insect stings and bites, poison ivy, and heat stress.

Sudden Cardiac Arrest (SCA) is NOT a heart attack. SCA is a condition that causes the heart to unexpectedly & abruptly quit beating. This is usually caused by an abnormal heart rhythm called ventricular fibrillation (VF).

The only effective treatment for VF is an electrical shock called defibrillation. Defibrillation is an electrical current applied to the chest. The electrical current passes through the heart with the goal of stopping the VF and providing an opportunity for the heart's normal electrical system to take control. This current helps the heart reorganize the electrical activity so it can pump blood again. An automated external defibrillator (AED) can defibrillate the heart.

Zoll AED Plus®

The AED Plus' unique graphical interface – pictures combined with text displays and voice prompts – helps rescuers every step of the way. Lights on the pictures draw the rescuer's attention to actions in the proper sequence. Text and voice prompts correspond to the pictures and help the rescuer perform every important life-saving action. These pictures and prompts assure that everything is done in order, and that shocks, if required, are delivered rapidly.
